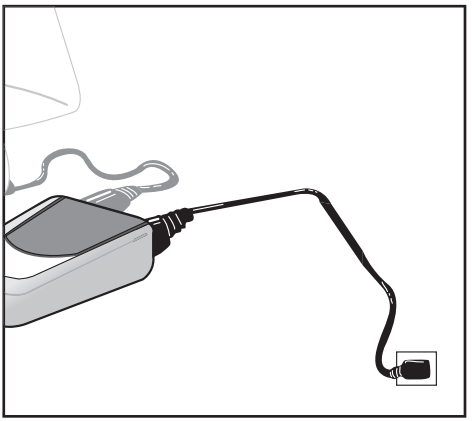
INTRODUCTION

The KA1000RR Remote Receiver is designed to alert the user of several types of notifications happening around them. This unit can signal via a flashing lamp to alert of an incoming telephone call, door bell signaler, alarm notification and much more up to a 300 foot radius. The KA1000RR can be hold up to 16 different transmitters and signal in 16 different methods.

INSTALLING YOUR KA1000RR

1. Connect the Lamp to the plug of the KA1000RR (shown in Figure 1.1) and turn the lamp to the ON position

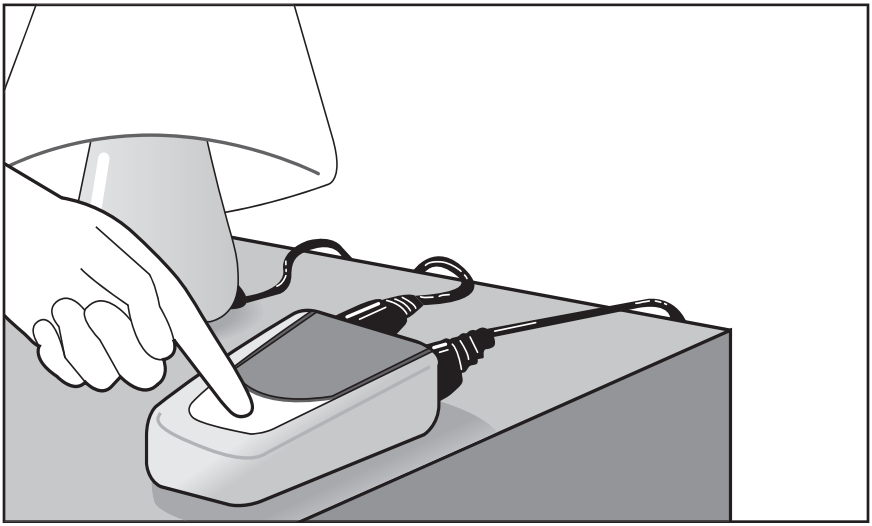
2. Plug the KA1000RR plug into the AC wall outlet (shown in Figure 1.2)



The KA1000RR is now ready to program.

PROGRAMMING THE KA1000RR MEMORY

To program the KA1000RR, press and hold the light switch button on the KA1000RR (figure 2.1). While holding the light switch button, press and hold the transmitter test button until the LED on the light switch button turns off then on one time. The transmitter ID is now recorded into memory of the receiver. To test if the KA1000RR has accepted the transmitter, press the transmitter test button to see if the unit begins to flash. To stop the flashing of the lamp, press the lamp switch button once.



If the light switch button flashes twice when programming the KA1000RR, the memory is full. Check the number of registered transmitters or erase any unused transmitters if needed.

ERASING A TRANSMITTER FROM MEMORY

To erase a transmitter from memory, press and hold the test button of the transmitter and light switch button at the same time. The KA1000RR will turn off then on twice to confirm the transmitter has been removed from memory.

Erasing ALL Transmitters from Memory at ONE time

To clear the whole memory of the KA1000RR, press and hold the light switch button until the LED flashes eight (8) times. This will clear all transmitters from the receiver.
